During the 12 January AFN Europe radio call-in Talk Show, students called School Transition Specialist in or e-mailed many questions. One of the many questions was "are there colleges in Europe for American students to attend?" The answer is yes. Attached is an updated list (not all) of many of the colleges/universities offering programs or degrees to American students.

More than seventy-five percent of DoDDS-Europe seniors enroll in a two or Brenda.coffield@ima-e.army.mil four year college or university after graduation. For a variety of reasons. many of these students remain in Europe to continue their education. Many make this choice because they have lived outside the United States most of their lives. Many choose to stay near their families because they are European citizens or until the end of the family's (Soldier or civilian)

Questions parents and prospective students should ask the institutes are:

- Is the school accredited?
- Is financial aid available?
- Is the FAFSA (Free Application for Student Aid) accepted?
